Summary

A pilot trying to forget.

I shut my eyes tightly as the memory made its way to the forefront of my mind. Phantom voices I had not heard in years started filling the enclosed space.

I growled before letting out a shout. “Get out of my head!”

I blindly punched the control panel only to be snapped back to reality by the unmistakable sound of glass shattering.

I did not know what to think as I lifted my hand closer to my face, staring incredulously at the object I was now holding.

Out of the corner of my eye, I saw Mark’s plane come up beside me. I heard him give a loud guffaw over the radio at the sight of the needle from my airspeed indicator being in my hand instead of in the instrument.

I glared at him. “Shut up.”

No longer in an airworthy condition, I turned the plane for home; shame and anger clouding my thoughts.
